

BRIC-A-BRAC.

HIS WIFE WAS HEALTHY.

"I notice in the papers," remarked the editor-in-chief to the funny man, "an assertion to the effect that the wives of all American humorists are invalids."

"Yes," replied the funny man; "I have seen it, but it is not a fact. My wife is in good health."

"So I should suppose," responded the editor. "If the wives of the American humorists are invalids, your wife ought to be enjoying exceedingly good health."—(Philadelphia Call.)

AN UNAPPRECIATIVE SOUL.

"To the seashore's spirit round
"Tis your heart that brings the sound:
The sea murmurs that you hear
Within, are captured from your ear."

"You do poets and their song
A grievous wrong.
If your own soul does not bring
To their high imagining
As much beauty as they sing."
—(Courier-Journal)

MATTER-OF-FACT.

"I'm very matter-of-fact," she cried,
To a handsome bachelor at her side—
An angel with wings,
"Oh, certainly yes," the wretch replied,
"For it is acknowledged far and wide
That facts are stubborn things."
—(N. O. Times-Democrat.)

SERVED THROUGH THE WAR.

"Oh, yes," said the tramp, as a tear glistened like a gum drop upon his sun-stained face. "I served through the entire war." After stowing away the comfortable breakfast that was given him he finished the sentence—"I was a waiter in a Canadian restaurant."—Boston Globe.

PURE WOMAN'S LOVE.

Woman's greatest beauty is love;
"Tis tested oftentimes shaken;
If nourished, like a rose it blooms,
But withers if forsaken.
Then blast is he by whom 'tis nursed—
By God 'twas made and given;
There is no greater beauty than
Pure woman's love."
—(Philadelphia Call.)

DURING THE EXCURSION SEASON.

In supporting a newspaper, gentle reader, you are casting your bread upon the waters, and it will return to you by first steamer.—St. Thomas Journal.

A KISS OF YE OLDEN TIMES.

Ye pleasure of ye lover's kiss,
When hearts are in attune,
Is like a kiss of far away
Is calling Heaven's boon.
Ye lips mix up in sweet embrace,
Ye eyes do pop and flash,
Ye noses nearly inter-lace,
Then comes the final crash.

ONE THING TO REMEMBER.

"There is one thing I want you to remember while you are on your travels," said Rollo's father, as he bade his son good-bye. "And what is that?" asked Rollo. "Remember the waiter," replied his father, with a mocking laugh, and the train thundered out of the depot, while the Pullman porter, taking note of Rollo's tender years, mentally sized him up for half a dollar.—Robert Burdette.

IN THE SPRING.

In the spring the robin red breast
Seeks his mate and builds a nest,
In the spring the corner loafer
Seeks the box that suits him best.
—(Clinton Bugle.)

A HARD LOCALITY.

"So you're going into politics, they tell me, Mr. Minigun. I do hope you'll do better than those horrid men up at Albany. My husband says they're going to spend an awful big sum to deprave Fifth avenue, when everyone knows it's depraved enough already."
—New York Dial.

NOT THIS YEAR.

"They say you are fresh," sang the robin to spring.
"If they say you are verdant," sang he;
And spring made reply, with a wink in her eye.
"Oh, no, there's no green about me."
—(Somerville Journal.)

A DOMESTIC DILEMMA.

"Married but six weeks and in tears!" exclaimed a friend to a weeping bride.
"Yes; the first carnal shadow has fallen athwart our pathway. It is settled at last; either I must quit eating taffy, or George must cut off his moustache."
—The Breeze.

THE ULSTER'S WAIL.

Once I was bright as a midsummer's moon,
But now I am faded and very much worn.
My owner, a seedy, broken-up fop,
Has hung me right up in his pet "uncle's" shop.
The future, in which all my hopes had been built,
Has nothing in store save an old crazy quilt.
—(New York Journal.)

'T WAS LONG AGO.

Nero is said to have worn a tiera worth $2,500,000 but history fails to state that, although a noted violinist, he had his tiara stolen now and then in order to get several thousand dollars worth of free advertising.—Norriston Herald.

A DEPLORABLE FACT.

There can't be sunshine every day—
At times the tempest looms;
We cannot always take our way
Through meadows strewn with flowers;

WHAT, STRIKE A WOMAN?

The fathers Mrs. Oscar Wilde will wear a head dress of sunflowers at the bridal ceremony. People, in throwing old shoes after this couple, should endeavor to combine force with great accuracy of aim.—Philadelphia Call.

A FORECAST.

When springtime gets her grip,
Upon his yearly trip
The ever-starring tramp doth roam about.
To the farmer he will tell
Of his sufferings. But the sell
Won't go, and so he's quickly fired out.
—(Boston Post.)

THE CASHIER'S ASCENDED.

"I paid out all my capital
In love's desperate bank;
But so return can I discern
So there I fear it sank."
—(Terre Haute Blade)

THE METEORS.

A Brilliant Performance at the Academy of Music.

The Omaha Bee has this complimentary notice of "The Meteors," which is to be presented at the Salt Lake Theatre on the evenings of Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, and Saturday afternoon: "Evans, Bryant and Hoey's 'Meteors' opened a two nights engagement in the Academy of Music last night. There was a good sized audience in attendance and it was, by all odds the best attraction which has been played in the Academy in many a month."

The programme was opened by the Werners, Ed. and Maud, in operatic and character interviews. They are both exceptionally fine, and scored a big hit. The French twin sisters, captivated the audience with their dancing. They are not only excellent dancers but are elegant dressers, their changes being very rapid, and each costume seemed more rich and beautiful than the one preceding.

Conroy and Dempsey, in their musical specialty, "Life's Pictures," were prime favorites and were loudly encored.

Bryant and Hoey followed in their latest effusion, "The Country Nig." Of these two gentlemen it is not necessary to speak. They are too well known to need any particular mention. Suffice it to say, that they are even better than ever before.

Hallen and Hart, in their first prize ideal entertainment, proved themselves to be artists.

Miss Ella Wesner, in her swell impersonations was applauded to the echo and was greatly in favor with her auditors.

The performance concluded with that most comical after piece, "The Book Agent." Mr. Chas. Evans, the irrepressible, appeared as a far sample of the modest and truthful book agent. The audience was convulsed with laughter until they could laugh no more and scream after scream made the old Academy echo and re-echo. It is the funniest piece seen upon an Omaha stage in a long time. The company play again to night and the house should be packed in every quarter.

Any lady, no matter how refined, may attend with a perfect assurance that the entertainment is one of the most chaste and pure given by any comedy company before the public to-day.

THE FARM.

Information and Hints for the Farmer and Dairyman.

A practical American farmer in a recent speech, at a State Dairyman's Convention, made known his plan for putting up hay. He uses slacked lime, salt and sulphur. He applies two quarts of lime, and one and a half quarts of salt to each load of hay; the amount of sulphur not given. A sample of the hay cured in such a manner was exhibited, and proved to be unusually bright and tender, showing none of the usual woody fibre. The gentleman stated that he depended largely on curing his hay in the barn rather than in the meadow. Would it not be well for Utah farmers to try this method? Good quality of hay is always in demand with us, at remunerative prices.

It is said that the pregnancy of cows may be discovered by letting a drop of their fresh milk fall into a glass of pure water. If the milk scatters or mingles with the water, the cow is not in calf. But if it sinks to the bottom of the glass in a globule form, and produces but a slight discoloration of the water, then the cow is pregnant. A very simple method.

Scalding the milk before feeding it to calves will, if taken in time, usually check the scours. Checking the discharge too suddenly is a common mistake, as the drugs given for the purpose permanently injure the animal's digestion, which is all important to its future as a milk or beef producer.

A correspondent of the Country Gentleman remarks: "Heifers that breed young generally make the best cows at maturity. If a heifer has a small bag when she calves it will increase with age, until she is altogether better than one that is kept back until she is a cow before she breeds. One three years old before she breeds may do well the first season, but never does well again. The young heifer will begin small and do best at maturity. I have known a heifer to drop a healthy calf three days before she was twelve months old, and she had no unusual trouble, and was as well and healthy as any cow. These conclusions are arrived at after more than fifty years of practical experience."

The old saying, no grass no cattle, no cattle no manure, no manure no crops, is a truism that cannot be refuted. Grass is the source of all the wealth of the farm; therefore it is all important that the meadow lands should have constant consideration with the farmer.
